About Worcestershire Wildlife Trust

Worcestershire Wildlife Trust is an independent charity dedicated to the conservation of the wildlife and wild places in the county of Worcestershire. It was founded in 1968.

The Trust operates from Lower Smite Farm between Worcester and Droitwich. The listed farmhouse is used as offices whilst the barns and outbuildings have been converted to provide workshops and a wildlife and farming centre that opened to schools in 2004. The 150-acre farm is managed to promote wildlife within an economically viable system and is accessible to visiting school groups and the public. We have over 75 nature reserves across Worcestershire. Whilst individual staff members are responsible for leading in their area of responsibility and expertise, all are expected to contribute to delivery through inter-team co-operation.

The Trust has around 23,000 members who provide financial support through subscriptions and many of whom do much hard work on behalf of everyone who appreciates their environment and wildlife. It also relies heavily on grants, corporate support, legacies and donations from the public.

The Trust is governed by a Council of around 17 elected trustees. Council is responsible for overall strategy and policy. Implementation is led by the Director and a team of staff (currently 35). In all aspects of the Trust's work, the paid staff members are supported by several hundred regular volunteers. All staff and volunteers are ultimately accountable to the Council.

About The Wildlife Trusts

Worcestershire Wildlife Trust is one of 46 Wildlife Trusts who work together throughout the United Kingdom to form the largest voluntary organisation concerned with all aspect of wildlife conservation. The junior wing of The Wildlife Trusts is called 'Watch.' Together, The Wildlife Trusts enjoy the support of more than 850,000 members and care for more than 2,000 nature reserves.

The Royal Society for Wildlife Trusts (RSWT) serves as the UK office of The Wildlife Trusts. A registered charity, incorporated by Royal Charter, RSWT provides an authoritative national voice for conservation concerns as well as national services for the partnership, through its council, staff and volunteers.

Our work to save wild places, manage land for wildlife and engage people with the natural world is vitally important. For decades, the Wildlife Trusts movement has demonstrated clearly what can be achieved; whether directly or by influencing the actions of others.

Our Vision: People closer to nature with land and seas rich in wildlife

Our Mission: To bring about living landscapes, living seas and a society where nature matters.
